WINTER SHIMMERS IN WAVE HILL HOLIDAY INSTALLATIONS
Wreathmaking, Piano Recitals, Art Programs Complement Exhibition
“Celebrating Winter through Nature”: November 24 – January 14

Bronx, NY, October 3, 2006 – Wave Hill, a public garden and cultural center, will Celebrate Winter through Nature with 11 holiday installations by contemporary artists from Friday, November 24, 2006 through Sunday, January 14, 2007. The sparkle, shimmer and scent of these ornamental works evoke a natural world aglow with the season. On view in the Perkins Visitor Center and Wave Hill House, a former 19th century estate house once home to Mark Twain, Theodore Roosevelt and Arturo Toscanini, festive piano recitals, wreathmaking, tastings, family art projects and more complement the exhibition.

Wave Hill also offers seasonal fare in its Café, unique gifts and tea tastings in the Shop (wavehillshop.com), and the opportunity to explore the garden’s expansive winter landscape. Admission is free in December, January, February. November: $4/$2 student, senior. Celebrate Winter through Nature is on view Tues-Sun, 9am-4:30pm.

ARTIST PROJECTS: In addition to their engagement with the natural world, each artist has a connection to Wave Hill through past exhibitions.

- Esperanza Cortés creates a curtain of glass beads and mirrors reminiscent of the floating icicles and snowflakes from her childhood memories.
- Elizabeth Duffy redefines convention with a gingerbread replica of Gerritt Rietveld's Schroder House, as well as unusual wreaths to garnish the entranceways.
- Michael Eade displays Methuselah, a festive gold and copper-leafed tree replica, along with a Wave Hill winter-inspired mural in the Perkins Visitor Center.
- Paula Hayes' Green Bombs feature live plant specimens overflowing from glass globes.
- Beth Galston's luminous flowering vines climb the wall of Wave Hill House's formal stairwell.
- Wennie Huang suspends an intricate, crocheted wall hanging of red pipe-cleaners.
- Lisa Hein and Bob Seng recreate an ice storm of mylar raging from the depths of the fireplace.
- Lisa Murch's crafted, larger-than-life bittersweet, sweet gum fruit, and pinecone adorn the Café walls.
- Cassandra Lozano's lighted globes capture the season's spectrum of color in the entry foyer.
- Angiola Riva Churchill's winter white, paper labyrinth dangles gracefully overhead.
- Laure Drogoul captures holiday scents in an olfactory installation set in the Tea Room.
